

Disney Volunteers Help Clean Rockaway Beach

Left, all kinds of debris were removed from the dunes. Center, sand of Far Rockaway Beach that piled up on the promenade by Beach 17 Street is removed by one of Disney's volunteers. Photos by Miriam Rosenberg.

By Miriam Rosenberg

From recovering trash in the dunes to removing sand from the stairs leading to the beach, by the benches and around O'Donohue Park, Disney Volunteers spread out across the lower part of Far Rockaway Beach last Saturday.

This is the third year that Disney

Volunteers have come to assist the Department of Parks and Recreation.

In addition to Disney's help, local groups such as the Beachside Bungalow Preservation Association, with a grant from the Citizen's Committee for New York City, held two cleanups this spring with a third one scheduled for June 12.

